THE WORD THIS WEEK By Robert Patterson

Judging from all signs, America has definitely come of age. Her popoularity continues to grow by leaps and bounds. Nobody, for example, has to travel abroad to see royalty any more. Royalty itself is beating a path right to America's doorstep, and to California's. The Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark have just enjoyed a brief taste of western hospitality in this state, and the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Norway are on their way. Meanwhile, the White House and the State Department are bustling over the coming visit to these shores of King George and Queen Elizabeth of England, and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are again considering a visit to America. It's a far cry from the days a struggling upstart republic was looked down upon by the nobility of a worldly wise Europe. Today it's America which has the power and the glory envied by old Europe. America has come of age, and the suitors for her favors are many.

For a quarter of a century presidents have fought for it, but not until last week did the first general revision in the structure of the federal government in 150 years take place. That was when the House of Representatives approved the first of three re-organization plans. What changes will these streamlined revisions make? A saving of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 a year, it is claimed. It also means good-bye to the WPA—but in name only! The WPA, PWA, United States Housing Authority, the Public Roads bureau, under present plans, will be merged into one public works agency. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, disappear as separate units into a single credit agency. Following the same course the Social Security board, the Public Health service, the Bureau of Public Education, are consolidated in one public welfare agency. Streamlined revision should help government do its job with more efficiency, but it raises a new problem. Will temporary relief agencies now merged into permanent units also become permanent?

Troubled times abroad make strange things come to pass. Rumania wants to settle her $64,000,000 war debt to the United States. In France, parliamentarians urge their government to take action on its debt to this country. No crystal gazer is needed to explain this sudden outburst of interest. Under the Johnson Act no defaulting government may treat further loans in this country, unitl its debt is wiped out. If debtors now want to settle, certainly the United States has no objection to taking payment. It will be the first good news from across the Atlantic in years!

A quiet campaign in Congress to provide pensions for the nation's lawmakers has just come to light. If warm opposition is aroused over such a piece of legislation, it won't come from the Capitol building. Rep. Remspeck, who nurtured the idea said he sounded out many congressmen. The approval was virually unanimous. Who can remember the good old days when pensions were a partisan issue:

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wells and daughter, Diane, arrived early Saturday morning from Los Angeles and are visiting Mrs. Well's mother, Mrs. Hattie Baugh and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Covey came up from Gilroy last Thursday to visit Mrs. Flora Crow, who had returned to her home here previously. They found her greatly improved and still gaining steadily.

Mrs. William Ohlen entertained the members of her bridge club last Thursday evening at her home on Winchester road. After an evening of card playing, delicious refreshments were served.

Miss Margaret Keesling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Keesling, has passed the examination for teachers in San Jose, has been approved by the board and will have a position there this coming year. She has been teaching very successfully for three years in Alamo, Contra Costa county.

Senior Class Will Present "The Patsy" May 19

"The Patsy" will be given by the Senior class of the Campbell high school May 19 in the school's auditorium to mark the first production to be staged with the excellent facilities of the beautiful new building.

The three-act comedy of character concerns Patricia Harrington (Doris Smith), a girl who "runs second" to her older sister. She is the patsy who is blamed whenever anything goes wrong, and is forced to remain in the background in order that her sister may be presented to advantage. Her father (Norval Guttormsen), a traveling man, is on her side, and finally declares his independence by putting Ma (Matilda Bogner) in her proper place. This brings about Patsy's ultimate triumph, and needless to say, affords her happiness as the bride of the man she loves.

In addition to the characters already mentioned, the cast of this delightfully different comedy includes David Crawley as Tony Anderson, Patsy's heart interest; Anna Jane Nelson as Grace Harrington, the beautiful self-centered older sister; Bill Adamson as Billy Caldwell, Grace's fiance; Florence Benevento as Sadie Buchannan; Charles Lane as Trip Busty; and Walter Flood as Francis Patrick O'Flahery.

Tickets for the production which is directed by Miss Gladys G. Gibson may be purchased from any member of the senior class. All seats are reserved and reservations should be made as soon as possible at the high school office.

Kiwanis Club Enjoys Music at Tuesday Meeting

The Kiwanis club enjoyed a "feast of music" Tuesday when the high school a cappella choir entertained with a group of songs.

C. P. Klassen director of the choir and chairman of the music committee of the club, presided. Kiwanis clubs in conjunction with other groups throughout the nation join in the observance of National Music Week.

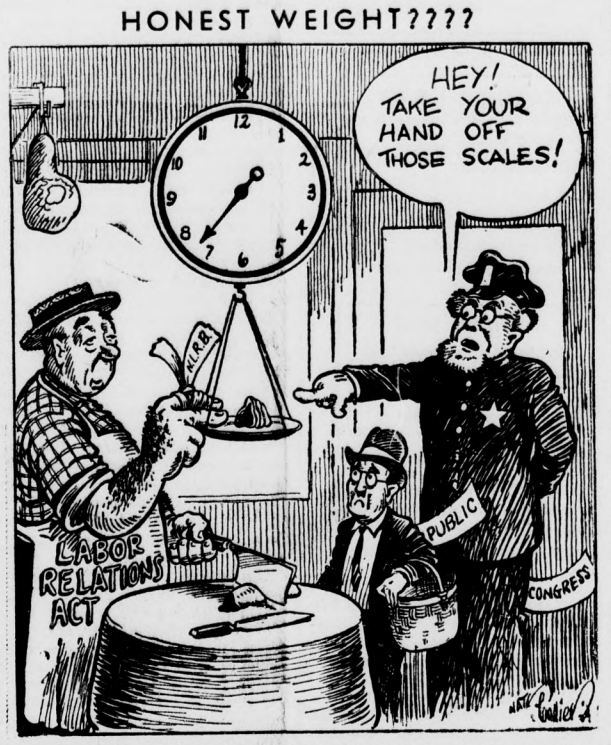
Next Tuesday a ladies night has been planned to which the Los Gatos club and ladies have been invited, dinner to be at 6:30.

What promises to be an unusual privilege has been arranged for that occasion. Kalfred Dip Lum, member of the central executive committee of the national government of China, and special envoy of China, will be the speaker, his subject the "Far Eastern Conflict." Mr. Lum is a former professor of the University of Hawaii, on leave of absence, and has addressed several of the important clubs and organizations in California. He will be presented by J. H. Bennett, chairman of the evening

Frank Lovoi, student at San Jose State college, registered from Campbell, is one of the 29 men candidates nominated for seven student council posts. Five women students were also among the nominees. Election will be held on Monday and on Friday, the 19th, a student body president will be voted upon from the seven council members elected.

The Cambrian auditorium will be the setting for an afternoon card party sponsored by the Cambrian and Almaden members of the Campbell Union High School P.-T. A., Friday, May 12. There will be tables for both bridge and whist, and dessert will be served at 1:30. The public is cordially invited.

Mrs. Charles Smith is substituting in the kindergarten of Campbell grammar school, for Miss Charlotte Wright, who has been ill for some time with influenza. Miss Wright will not be able to return to teaching this season.



High P.-T. A. Met Wednesday in New School Auditorium

Due to a last minute change in plans, the Campbell Union High school P.-T. A. held its last meeting of the year in the new auditorium of the school, on May 10. Mrs. E. A. Howe, retiring president, called the meeting to order and introduced Mrs. C. E. Williams, chairman of the day, who presented her program.

The high school orchestra, under the direction of A. A. Thielke, music director, presented four numbers, and Miss Helen Nielson, vice principal, gave an interesting and informative talk on report cards and the new systems of marking.

Following reports of standing committees, Mrs. C. H. Danforth, president of sixth district P.-T. A. officiated at the installation ceremony and the officers to receive the honor of being the first to be installed in the new auditorium were:

President, Mrs. Harry F. Rediker; vice president, Mrs. Frank Blair; secretary, Mrs. Ray Wood; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Fahler; historian, Mrs. T. J. Armstrong; Parliamentarian, Mrs. E. A. Howe.

Following the installation, Mrs. Rediker took the chair and appointed the following committee heads for the coming year:

Publicity, Mrs. J. O. Leverton; magazines, Mrs. E. E. Coonradt; education, Miss Helen Nielsen; membership, Mrs. E. L. Farnham; hospitality, Mrs. Ira Abbott, Mrs. William Lloyd, Mrs. C. B. Field, Mrs. F. R. Anderson; study group, Mrs. F. A. Jacobson; music, Mrs. Anthony Jurras; finance and budget, Mrs. M. F. Hughes; Founder's day, Mrs. F. A. Lopes.

The social hour was held in the little theater, with the Girl Reserves serving refreshments.

The Campbell Community Choir will meet Tuesday, May 16 and the following Monday, May 20 at the high school. The choir hopes to put on a public porgram in the not distant future.

A new corps of officers to conduct the activities of the Cambrian Home and School club, was installed at the last meeting. It included Mrs. Life Price, president; Mrs. Henry Jensen, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Fagaldi, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Ray Langley, auditor. They succeeded Mesdames Gus Horton, Carl Myers and Harry Walters. Mrs. Life Price advancing from the vice presidency.

The Home Economics club of Orchard City Grange will meet at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, Friday, May 12, with Mrs. Malissa Smith, 41 South Third street.

Mrs. W. I. Merrill left last week for Cincinnati, Ohio, where she is visiting her son Stephen and family.

Dave R. Oliver Former Resident Passes in Merced

Friends in Campbell received word today of the death of Dave R. Oliver Wednesday, May 10, in Merced.

Oliver came to California from the east about forty-seven years ago, and lived in Campbell for a number of years with his family. They later moved to Merced where they are still living.

Oliver joined Morning Light lodge, I. O. O. F. of Campbell, of which he has been a member for forty-two years.

Surviving relatives are his wife, four daughters: two sons, a sister, Mrs. McWilliams of Los Angeles, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services and interment will be held Friday afternoon at Modesto.

Letter To The Campbell Press

Editor, Campbell Press:

Today marks the expiration of my term as publicity chairman for the Campbell Union High School P.-T. A., and before turning the work over to my successor, I wish to thank you and your staff for the wonderful courtesy and co-operation you have shown me during the past year.

The year's Publicity Record Book for our unit has been awarded the blue ribbon of merit, from the sixth district of P.-T. A., and is to be on display at the state convention this month. Without the assistance I received, such a thing would not have been possible and the entire unit joins me in voicing our thanks.

Sincerely yours,
Gertrude Wood.

Being Enlisted In Marine Corps

Qualified applicants for enlistment in the United States Marine corps may now be enlisted and transferred within a few days of date of application.

Additional information may be obtained at the local post office, or by contacting the Marine corps recruiting station, 46 Federal Office building, San Francisco.

Since returning from Europe and Spain, Perley Payne, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Payne of Harrison avenue, has had numerous invitations from clubs and other orgainzations, including Stanford University and Montezuma school, to give talks on conditions in Spain.

Mother's Day will be observed Sunday morning at the Congregational church with a church and home service at 11 o'clock, the young people of the church taking over the major part of the program.

New Campbell Theatre Opens Friday, May 12

Cluminating two years of intensive reasearch and six months of actual filming, Darryl F. Zanuck's production "Jesse James," 20th Century-Fox's spectacular drama of the nation's most famous outlaw and the turbulent events that gave him to the world, will come in brilliant Technicolor, to the screen of the Campbell Theatre, on its opening day, Friday, May 12. The show will open at 6:00 p. m.

In this epic story of a lawless era we are given a true and stirring picture of the most colorful outlaw that ever lived. For in "Jesse James the almost legendary figure is portrayed by Tyrone Power exactuly as he was—neither all good nor all bad, a brave and tender husband to the girl who married him, a victim of injustice to the simple folk who knew him and, to the people who hated him, an outlaw and a killer.

Tyrone Power, in the title role, gives what can only be described as one of the finest performances of the year. In the last analysis, it is he who makes the character of James such a sympathetic figure in the eyes of the audience.

Henry Fonda is excellent as Frank James, brother of Jesse, and Nancy Kelly, as Jesse's wife Zee, tops every performance she has given to date. Randolph Scott is splendid in the role of Marshall Wright. Individually brilliant performances are given by every member of an exceptional supporting cast.

On the same bill is Melvyn Douglass and Virginia Bruce in "There's That Woman Again," a mystery-comedy.

High School Trustees File For Re-Election

Mrs. Jessie A. Shelley and Joseph A. Conner whose terms as members of the high school board of trustees expire this year, have filed as candidates for the June 2 election.

Both of these trustees have served during the long period of work connected with plans and construction of the new school and sale of old building materials and property. There is still a considerable amount of work and detail to be attended to before buildings are all completed, recreation fields in condition, and grounds landscaped, and these two trustees have signified their willingness to continue in service until the task is completed.

A district Boy Scout Court of Honor will be held in Campbell on Friday, May 26. The Campbell committee is making arrangements and the program will be supplied by the several troops in the area.

The meeting of the Women's Service club scheduled for next Wednesday, May 17, will be held in the Methodist church, with the Mesdames Merlin Bohnett, A. F. Moorland and Charles F. Smith as hostesses. An important item of business will be the report of the nominating committee.

The faculty of the Campbell grammar school honored one of their number, Miss Ida Dornberger, with a surprise luncheon Monday. The Hawaiian motif was carried out in favors, decorations and entertainment. Miss Dornberger is planning to be married soon.

The St. Lucy's Women's club will sponsor a card party Saturday evening, May 13, at the parish hall. Card playing will begin at 8:15 and refreshments will be served at the close. The public is cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Evans of Osseo, Minn., are house guests in the M. E. Purmort home, having arrived Wednesday. Leaving Saturday they will visit the Golden Gate Exposition before continuing their journey.

W. H. Van Dyke To Be Speaker At Woman's Club

The general theme of the Country Woman's club meeting on Monday, May 15, will be "Education and the Public Schools." Willard H. Van Dyke will speak on the subject "Training of the Modern Youth of our Schools."

The a cappella choir directed by C. P. Klassen will sing the following numbers:

"Deep River," Negro spiritual; "Pretty Little Miss," Horton; "Golden Glow (A Major Waltz), J. Brahms; "Brother James' Air," Gordon Jacob.

"Capriccio," "Minuet Galante," "Savatina," all by J. S. Zamecnik.

Mrs. Anthony Jurras, chairman of the program committee is very desirous of a full attendance of club members to show the appreciation due the high school students who have given so generously of their talents throughout the year; to the instructors who prepare them for these appearances and to Supt. Van Dyke for giving of his time at this very busy season in the school year.

Final plans for the picnic to be held on June 5 will be announced at this meeting.

Juniors Invite Community To Skating Party

Junior class of Campbell Union high school is extending a cordial invitation to the student body and community to attend the annual skating party at the San Jose Roller rink on the Alameda Monday night.

The gala fun-frolic is for all kids from six to sixty. Class officials are urging everyone to join in this thrilling community party because, as they point out, "if you can't skate, come and learn." Prizes will be given for the fanciest flops.

Tickets may be purchased from any junior classman or at the box office of the roller rink Monday night.

Free Training For Youth

More than 40,000 students from all parts of the world have received tuition-free training at The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, founded 53 years ago by D. L. Moody, noted evangelist. In these years thousands of graduates have entered special Christian service as pastors, evangelists, Bible teachers, directors of Christian education, gospel song leaders, and Sunday school superintendents and teachers in churches of nearly all denominations.

Last year, nearly 3,000 attended the day and evening schools, and 13,000 were enrolled in the correspondence school. The Bible is the principal textbook, but coursee are offered also in Sunday School administration, gospel music, public speaking, home economics, manual training, homiletics, apologetics, Greek, Hebrew, and medical subjects for missionary work.

There are three terms a year—fall, winter, and summer. An illustrated catalogue will be mailed on request. Address: 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Progressive education has been pushed around a lot lately. The Bellwether Lincoln school of New York has been backtracking, as have several other Daniel Boones of the educational wilderness. From the right came the charge that they just let the youngsters fool around with toys and tools, without rubbing in any real education.

See What Came Of Leaving Chap With $2 Camera

Here's a field goal for the other side. At the somewhat ultra Fountain Valley, progressive school of Colorado Springs, the boy David Hare, scion of a highly placed New York family, was given carte blanche to build his education around a $2 camera. The idea, as in all progressive schools of those few years back, was to give the green light to any creative impulse.

But, at 22, here is Mr. Hare with a New York exhibit of camera portraiture, with President Roosevelt among his subjects, and with famous artists and photographers, including Arnold Genthe, cheering him as the "Leonardo da Vinci of the camera." Specifically, they agree that young Mr. Hare has proved indisputably that the camera not only may be, but now is an instrument of the highest artistic expression, and that he demonstrates an absolutely new method and medium of color portrait photography.

His three-lens camera allows the superimposing of color images, in the manner of the color-printing process, and makes possible shading and emphasis in the service of mood. His is the first and only color portrait exhibit in the country. Artists and prominent society folk are boiling with enthusiasm over Mr. Hare's achievement.

He is a tall, shy, personable young man, somewhat inarticulate, as he filters life through a lens, and hesitant in any other form of expression. As was the young Lindbergh. There is the same "We" combination here. Whether he knows the prepositions used with the ablative or whether he stumbled across the "Bridge of Asses" is not revealed.

OUT of the limbo of the past rises "Ole Bill," Bruce Bairnsfather's famous walrus-mustached cartoon character of World war days, to adorn recruiting posters being displayed throughout the United Kingdom. Bairnsfather says his revised character reveals signs of age, but, for that matter, so does the cartoonist.

Time's Attrition Marks 'Ole Bill' And His Creator

The slow attrition of 20 years since a slender youngster created "Ole Bill," in a trench in Flanders, has added to his bulk, had taken toll of his thatch of wavy black hair. Bitterness came, too, as when he returned all his war medals to the British government in protest against its treatment of veterans.

Somehow, despite the wide and varied exploitation of Bill—books, lectures, a play, "The Better Ole," a syndicated piece and so forth—Bruce seemed to get the short end of it all. He is said to have received some $10,000 out of $500,000 earned by his black and white creation. Putting on his own review, "Ullo," he lost $40,000, and after that events led him straight to bankruptcy, liabilities $75,000, assets negligible.

He was born in India of a long line of army forebears and began life as an electrical engineer. Of recent years, what with lecturing, writing and drawing, life is said to have dealt more amiably by him.

SELECTED for transfer from his post as ambassador to Argentina to the government of Gen. Francisco Franco in Spain, Alexander W. Weddell, 63 years old, bears with him such assets as are implied in the long experience of a career diplomat, a man of tact and diplomatic deftness, combined with broad humanitarian sympathies.

Our Ambassador To Spain Packs Diplomatic Bag

Mr. Weddell was educated at George Washington university law school and the University of Catania in Italy. Appointed private secretary to the minister to Denmark in 1908, he entered the consular service two years later as consul at Zanzibar. He spent two years, 1912-14, as consul at Catania, going thence to Athens as consul general.

Retiring from the diplomatic service in 1928, he returned six years ago, filling various consular posts until his appointment as ambassador to the Argentine.

"To make democracy work . . . to ensure . . . free government . . ."

EUROPE:
Prelude, Song, Postlude

Democracy was adamant one week before Der Fuehrer gave Reichstag and the world his answer to President Roosevelt's peace appeal. By four days before speech time Hitler had become adamant, Britain and the U. S. cautiously shifting their stand to show simultaneously that democracies (1) will not, and (2) can be persuaded to, participate in another Munich conference.

Britain showed appeasement inclinations by rushing her previously recalled ambassador, pro-Nazi Sir Nevile Henderson, back to Berlin. Next day, as Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop delightedly kept Sir Nevile waiting outside his door, Britain indignantly inaugurated her first peacetime conscription and presented parliament with a $6,213,000,000 budget (of which 47 per cent will go for arms). In the U. S., Secretary of State Cordell Hull warned Hitler to eschew more conquests in favor of "peace before war" via negotiation. Meanwhile the treasury wooed Hitler's good will by modifying its 25 per cent penalty against German imports.

Poland prepared to defend her borders at all cost. Rumania decided to avoid an anti-Nazi pact. Japan fidgeted excitedly and complained she did not want war with democracies despite her anti-Comintern pact with Italy and Germany. The Balkans were apparently a solid Nazi front. With Rome and Paris waiting in strange silence, the world finished its quavering prelude to the most vital speech Adolf Hitler will ever make:

SIR NEVILE HENDERSON
Herr von Ribbentrop had fun.

Song. Never a brief speaker, Der Fuehrer took more than an hour to lay foundation for a point-by-point rejection of Mr. Roosevelt's peace plea, a rebuttal he interlarded with fine sarcasm. Biggest pre-sarcasm revelations:

(1) Germany considers the Anglo-French-Polish non-aggression pact unfriendly, therefore denounces its 10-year friendship pact with Poland. But Poland can still have the treaty Germany secretly proposed several months ago, a 25-year friendship pact contingent upon return of Danzig to the Reich and designation of a pathway from Germany to East Prussia through the Polish corridor. In return, Hitler guarantees the Polish corridor and recognizes Polish commercial rights in Danzig.

(2) Treaty or no, Danzig must be returned to Germany.

(3) Hitler denounces the Anglo-German naval limitations treaty, but will gladly discuss the problem to prevent a naval race.

Highlight of the rebuttal was that Germany will give non-aggression promises to each of the nations allegedly "threatened," but that each guarantee will be made individually upon petition and on a basis of absolute reciprocity. Greatest rebuttal sarcasm concerned such "threatened" nations as Ireland and Palestine, which—according to Hitler—have more to fear from English suppression than German aggression.

Point-by-point rebuttal:

(1) Mr. Roosevelt pointed to three European and one African nation whose independence has been terminated since 1936. Answer: What is "independence," anyway? Albania, Austria and Czecho-Slovakia really had their "independence" terminated after the World war. As for Africa, Mussolini's Ethiopian conquest merely followed a precedence of aggression established by France and Britain.

(2) Has Germany been aggressive? Answer: No, Germany has kept peace since 1918, compared with repeated U. S. intervention in the world's wars.

(3) Has any nation the right to wage war except in self defense? Answer: No, and certainly the U. S. did not enter the World war in self defense, which gives Mr. Roosevelt little right to speak of such matters.

(4) Can world problems be solved via conference? Answer: Yes, theoretically; no, practically. Example is the League of Nations which the U. S. shunned, thereby admitting the failure of peace by conference. Hence Germany followed U. S. example and left the League. The freedom of North America was not solved by conference any more than was the U. S. civil war.

For U. S. citizens, biggest news of the speech was (1) a promise that Germany intended no invasion, (2) a supplication that President Roosevelt take the lead in world peace efforts. For British, biggest news was a very obvious bid for good will despite denunciation of the naval pact.

Postlude. Best opinion held the two-hour harangue a conciliatory refusal of Mr. Roosevelt's appeal. Said Kansas' Sen. Arthur Capper: "After listening to Hitler, I still hope Europe's troubles can be settled by peaceful methods." Informed observers left their loud speakers expecting both the U. S. and Britain to make new overtures, confident that war had been averted for the nonce, but certain above all else that Adolf Hitler positively holds the European whip hand.

WHITE HOUSE:
Reorganization

"Dictator" criticism notwithstanding, U. S. governmental reorganization is substantially a sound idea if it promotes economy and efficiency by lumping miscellaneous, isolated and similarly functioning offices under a single administrator. Last year's reorganization bill stumbled partly because it might have given an unscrupulous future President too much power. Modified and passed this session, it allows the President six administrative assistants and permits him to draft reorganization plans which congress must accept entirely or reject within 60 days.

Already submitted is the major portion of Mr. Roosevelt's plan (see chart above) designed "to make democracy work—to strengthen the arms of democracy in peace or war and ensure the solid blessings of free government . . ." Three new agencies (public works, social security, loans) will be managed by three of the six new $12,000-a-year administrative assistants, each of which will have a $9,000-a-year assistant administrator. Lacking cabinet portfolio (the original plan contemplated new cabinet posts for security and work agencies), the new administrative assistants will nevertheless be virtually of that rank.

Two more reorganization plans to come will (1) shift bureaus from one department to another, thus securing more logical classifications, and (2) reorganize intra-departmental machinery. Biggest contemplated objective in the latter plan, since dropped, was consolidation of all six of the treasury's investigative units, a step the President finally decided might lead to a U. S. copy of Germany's Gestapo or Russia's Ogpu.

PHILIPPINES:
Problem Child

Less than a decade has passed since the U. S. fought Philippine independence demands, but tables have a way of turning. Given congressional assurance of early freedom, Philippine President Manuel Quezon hardly had time to exult before Japan turned imperialistic, swaggered into China and began grabbing off every piece of unprotected real estate within Asiatic waters. Since Japs already hold a strong commercial position in Manila, moreover since even a double-strength U. S. Pacific fleet might not be able to hold the islands against sudden attack, many Americans believe their nation should leave the Philippines before getting involved in war. Added impetus is given by U. S. agriculture's resentment over concessions to Filipino sugar.

Sensing that the U. S. was anxious to pull stakes, Manuel Quezon last year appealed to President Roosevelt and won an administration-sponsored proposal calling for political independence in 1946, the 25 per cent tariff being increased by 5 per cent a year until wholly effective in 1961. Since President Quezon will not be able to attend hearings this year, the bill is being tabled until next session. When he does arrive, Mr. Quezon will be offered an even stronger deal which members of the Senate committee on territories and insular possessions have already accepted unanimously, albeit secretly. The deal: If Filipinos will cut political ties with the U. S. in 1942, current 25 per cent tariff rates will continue until 1946 as under the administration bill. Then rates will jump 10 per cent annually until the U. S. washes its hands of the whole affair in 1953.

Still officially unannounced, the substitute bill (suggested by Maryland's Sen. Millard E. Tydings) has been hushed for fear Japan may sail into Manila immediately, confident the U. S. does not care to defend the harbor Admiral Dewey stormed so heroically in 1898.

BOLIVIA:
Democratic Dictator

Forbears of Bolivia's 35-year-old President German Busch came from the country which supplied his baptismal name, but for two generations Busches have been loyal Bolivians. In 1935 German Busch emerged from the Gran Chaco war with Paraguay to find his country's government in horrible shape. Friendly to labor and business, boasting strong Catholic support, Youngster Busch became provisional president in July, 1937, when Col. David Toro's "socialistic" state was toppled. Last May he was constitutionally re-elected, beginning a task from which lesser men might have turned away.

BOLIVIA AND BUSCH

Plagued by Naziism and Fascism, bankrupt and facing possible revolution if Bolivia's three Chaco war parties (Liberal, Republican, Socialist Republican) won the May legislative election, President Busch surprised the world by announcing a new type political animal, dictatorship to prepare for "a real democracy."

Observers give German Busch a good chance of succeeding. Having canceled the election, dissolved his congress and abolished constitutional guarantees on the plausible assumption that restive Bolivia does not deserve democracy at this moment, Colonel Busch is the world's first dictator to (1) invite "patriotic" criticism of his regime; (2) reject his cabinet's resignation; (3) view Fascism and Naziism "with pain," and (4) promise an election five to eight months hence to let Bolivia decide its own destiny.

PEOPLE:
Shortstop to Cardinal?

Named archbishop of New York to succeed the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Most Reverend Francis J. Spellman, 49-year-old auxiliary bishop of Boston whose boyhood friends at Whitman, Mass., remember him as the town's best baseball shortstop and a better-than-average boxer. Forecast: That Archbishop Spellman will also be named cardinal at the June consistory in Rome.

¶ Ousted from Rome, Richard Mowrer, correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, for his "unfriendly" dispatches. Last November 20 another Daily News man, Frank Smothers, was also invited to leave Italy.

Star Dust

By Virginia Vale

THE movie moguls keep trying to discourage proud mothers who yearn to get their offspring into pictures—and then, every so often, up bobs the report that another child is being groomed for fame and glory as a screen star.

The newest member of the group of child stars is Jacqueline Nash. She's a tiny blonde Canadian, nine years old, and according to the story sent out by her press representative, she was recently discovered by Samuel Goldwyn in a Los Angeles tourist camp. (How on earth Mr. Goldwyn got within ten miles of a tourist camp is a problem that baffles the imagination.)

Jacqueline and her mother, Mrs. Minette Nash, had had their troubles getting to that camp. Winter visitors from their home in Toronto, they had had various kinds of bad luck; they lost their car and their money, and finally Mrs. Nash came down with flu.

When things couldn't get any worse they got better. Mr. Goldwyn discovered Jacqueline and signed her up for the picture that Jascha Heifetz will make for him.

Mrs. Nash has been training Jacqueline since the child was 18 months old; the youngster's voice is said to be remarkable in range and quality. But have you noticed that child stars rarely get contracts just by walking into a producer's office and showing what they can do? Ever since the days when Mary Miles Minter was discovered hanging around in the corridor while her mother and sister waited inside to get sister a job, not a child star has bobbed up without an accompanying tale of how somebody discovered him or her.

Kay Lorraine, of the "Hit Parade" broadcasts, is one of the few girls who ever refused a commercial audition. Three months ago she was singing on Station KMOX in St. Louis. A New York agent wired to tell her that the Hit Parade officials had auditioned 207 girl singers, weren't satisfied with any of them, and wanted to hear her.

KAY LORRAINE

She wanted the engagement, but felt that anybody who hadn't liked any one of 207 singers would just be too hard to please. It wasn't worth while to make the trip to New York on the chance that she would win out. So she refused to go.

But the program's sponsor wanted to hear her badly enough to promise her one appearance on the "Hit Parade" if she'd travel East, and pay her for the engagement. She couldn't refuse when opportunity knocked that second time. She's been thankful ever since that she didn't.

Joan Bennett chartered a yacht for a week-end of complete rest when she finished work in "The Man in the Iron Mask," but no sooner had she boarded it than she discovered that somebody had worked overtime installing a brand new ship-to-shore telephone. She wouldn't sail until it had been disconnected. She was fairly sure of not being summoned back for retakes, but Hollywood is full of people who can't resist calling somebody up the instant they see a telephone.

No rainstorm can daunt the actors and actresses who took part in "Wuthering Heights"—17,000 gallons of water per day were poured on their luckless heads for days and days, for those rain scenes.

The snow scenes weren't quite so bad; the snow was unbleached and untoasted corn flakes, four and one-half tons of them. But being slapped in the face by corn flakes, even unbleached and untoasted ones, when a wind machine is propelling them at a good, stiff rate, is none too pleasant.

ODDS AND ENDS—Warner Brothers want Joan Edwards, who sings on the air with Paul Whiteman's band, for a picture. But she has a contract for a year, and can't go to Hollywood unless the whole band goes along . . . When the quintuplets have rested up from their chat with the king and queen of England, RKO Pathe will move cameras right into the nursery to make a two-reel film of them, celebrating their fifth birthday.

SYNOPSIS

Richard Exon, a poor young Englishman, befriends elderly Matthew Gering, who at his death, gives him a statement claiming he, Gering, is Rudolph Elbert Virgil, Count of Brief, of ancient Austrian nobility who was betrayed 20 years before by his twin brother, Ferdinand, whose sentence for forgery he himself served. Ferdinand appropriated his title, property and daughter. Before he dies, Gering tells Exon there is a family secret, known only to the head of the house, to be found in the great tower at Brief, by a doorway none can ever find. Exon inherits his uncle's fortune and sets out to right Gering's wrongs. En route he encounters Percy Elbert Virgil, son of the villainous Ferdinand and sees him in conference with Inskip, a diamond merchant. He engages a valet. Winter, who hates Percy and meets by chance at a garage, John Herrick, who is a linguist and who as a youth served as a page at Gering's wedding, and had visited Brief. Herrick agrees to aid Exon. They establish headquarters at Brenda Revoke's farm at Raven, a few miles from Brief and make their plans. They find the castle almost inaccessible. They see a closed car occupied by Percy Virgil, a chauffeur and a woman. Hearing a dog scream, they see the chauffeur flogging it, just as a horse with a girl astride bounds along the path and is felled by a strung wire. The girl, unconscious, is picked up carelessly by the chauffeur and woman, who then run away, after dropping her. Exon rescues the girl and carries her to his waiting car. He identifies the girl as Elizabeth, daughter of the disowned Gering, tells her of her cousin's plot to abduct her and takes her to Raven, where he tells her the story of her father and promises to go the limit to help her right her father's wrongs. Elizabeth wins faith in her benefactor. Percy Virgil brings the police to Raven, announcing that two strangers are being sought for the kidnaping of Elizabeth. Herrick discomfits Virgil, tells of the morning's adventure, names a man called Max and hands the police a sealed envelope with the name of the leader in the abduction—Percy Virgil. Exon and Herrick suspect Percy of having sold the family jewels through Inskip. All realize the only solution is to find the Secret of Brief, which the impostor Ferdinand does not know. They decide to take possession of the Tower.

Holding my torch in my teeth, I inspected the four beddings carefully, one by one. There was nothing to choose between them: all were apparently sound. I put my torch away, and tested the bars themselves. The first was not rock-steady: the second, however, might have been a part of the tower.

Clinging to the cage like some ape, I fought to loosen the first, and when I stopped to take breath, I could move it an eighth of an inch.

But for the cage, I could never have done what I did. As it was, I could work with freedom, and, when I was tired, I could rest: and this without the dragging, deadly oppression of what I will call self-support. Never at any time was I holding my own weight up.

Without the mallet, the chisel was of no use, and I could not have used them together, because I had to hold on: but by working the bar to and fro, I gradually crushed the cement which was lying within the sockets between the bar and the stone.

After nearly half an hour this bedding was gone, and I could move the bar sideways a full two inches each way: but wrench it out, I could not, and after a little I knew that its ends had been purposely bent—to defeat the very object I had in view. I could loosen, but I could not displace it, unless I had the strength to pull a stone from the tower.

Now the bars had been set in the wall four inches apart. By holding my bar to one side, I now had a space of six inches between that bar and the next. But that was not wide enough . . . After a moment or two, I began to try to loosen the second bar.

As well try to shake a statue—or so it seemed. As I have said, the thing was a part of the tower. But after ten frantic minutes I felt it stir.

I stopped for a moment to rip off my tie and collar and let them drop. Then I fell upon that bar, like a man possessed.

Twenty-five minutes went by before I had the sockets clear of cement.

If I moved the two bars I had loosened as far apart as I could, I now had a space of eight inches through which to pass: but, short of displacing a bar, I could have no more, for the iron of which they were wrought was not to be bent.

I have sometimes heard said that where a man's head will enter, there his body can pass. On that exacting night I proved that saying untrue. I could put my head into the cage, but, do what I would, I could not pass my body between the bars.

Three feet below me, I saw Elizabeth's upturned face. She was standing on Herrick's shoulders, leaning against the wall.

"What is it?" I whispered. "What is it?"

"Leave it, Richard. You must. No man could do any more, but it can't be done."

It was the phrase she used that opened my eyes.

"No man could do any more." Perhaps. But a woman could.

"Listen," I said, "you've come in the nick of time. Can you see these bars? The two middle ones are splayed: but I can't move them farther apart, and I'm too big to get through. But you can pass easily—and the window is open beyond . . . Very well. In a minute I'm going to lean down and pick you up, but not by your hands—by your belt. Put your hands above your head, as though you were going to dive: and when you come up to the bars, just wriggle your way between them and get a knee on the sill."

Without a word, she put up her hands as I said, and I disposed myself as well as I could.

Holding fast with my left to a cross-bar, I reached my right hand down till I touched the small of her back. Then I took her by the belt of her breeches and lifted her up.

She could not have played her part better, if we had rehearsed the maneuver a score of times. As she came to the bars, she turned sideways, her back to me: and before I knew where I was, she had taken her weight.

And then it was all over, and she was within the tower—standing,

We Had Been Within the Tower for Thirty-Nine Hours.

For a moment we regarded one another, she as unearthly fair as I was foul.

Then—

"What can't you do?" she said quietly.

I shall never forget that moment. The iron bars were between us, the bars which I could not pass. Like some beast, I was peering between them at a beauty which was not of my world. Corruption surveyed incorruption—and found it his heart's desire.

"When you talk like that," I said hoarsely, "you make me feel rich."

Elizabeth smiled.

"That was the idea," she said gently. "Be careful how you get down."

CHAPTER V

I shall not set down in detail the search we made for the "doorway which no one would ever find," for, for one thing, we went about it as anyone else would have done, and, for another, almost the whole of our labor was thrown away. But that, I suppose, was inevitable.

There was the winding stairway, scaling the wall of the tower, and within its coils were the chambers which made the suite. From top to bottom its walls and its steps were of stone, and the flight rose without interruption, except for four landings so slight as scarce to deserve that name. It was very simply built and served or was served by five doorways, not one of which was hidden in any way; and since its form was that of the ordinary winding stair, it was hard to see how any other doorway could really be there, and harder still to divine where such another doorway could possibly lead—for on one hand you had the chambers and, on the other, the wall of the tower itself.

The door from the courtyard gave to a miniature hall which just accepted the oak when Elizabeth swung it back. This hall was but four feet square and might, in days gone by, have been held by one man against fifty who strove to pass. As you entered the hall, the stairway rose on your right, and, before you, another doorway led to the first of the chambers within the tower. These were three in number, and all would have had the same shape, but for the demands which lavatories and a bathroom had made.

Before we did anything else, we bolted the door between the tower and the castle, as well, of course, as the door by which we came in.

After that, I made for the window whose bars I had forced aside, and roughly repacked the sockets from which the cement was gone; and since, before we came in, we had gathered the scraps which had fallen whilst I was at work, there now was nothing to show that the cage had been tampered with.

Then I joined my lady and Herrick, who were surveying the stair.

If this was dark by night, it was dim by day, and we could do nothing useful without the help of a torch: so, though we had not brought Brenda with that idea, she had very soon to come to Elizabeth's aid: together they shed the light, whilst Herrick and I conducted the actual search.

That the work would require great patience was presently clear, for the walls seemed to be as blank as an untouched page, yet we could not believe that a doorway could be concealed in the steps.

"You must go up, counting your steps . . ."

Not until that time did I at all understand the portion confronting the prisoner of ancient days, who set himself to discover a way to break out of his hold: but now I know some of the trials those men endured, for though our case was different, we did as they must have done. The constant chill and the rudeness of naked stone, the furtive light, the anxious fingering of masonry, the whispered consultation, the sudden shock of unfamiliar sounds—of such was our two-day tenure of the great tower of Brief.

It was five o'clock on the Wednesday afternoon when Elizabeth straightened her back and led the way to the bedroom where Brenda had set out some tea.

We had now been within the tower for 39 hours, for more than 30 of which we had striven to find the doorway with all our might. And we were no nearer our goal than when we had bolted the doors and begun our search. At most, ten hours were left us, for by three on the following morning we must be gone.

As I stumbled into the bedroom, Herrick opened his mouth. "We have now eight hours in which to discover a secret we know is here. Myself, I think we should do it: in fact, if we don't, I shall think the less of myself. When all's said and done, it's a question of using one's brain. And that's where I think we've gone wrong. When our eyes and our hands had failed us, we ought to have let them be: to go on using them was only distracting our brains . . . Well, I'm going to give mine a show now—before it's too late."

With that, he walked into the bathroom, to lave his head and his hands, and I sank down on the bed and did my best to marshal my weary wits.

"He's right," said Elizabeth, slowly. "One always begins the wrong way. Once we'd been over the ground, we ought to have sat down quietly and let our minds play upon the puzzle. You know. Like doing a crossword."

"That's all very well," said I, accepting some tea from Brenda, who showed no sign of fatigue. "But who could do a crossword without any clews?"

"We've got two clews. We know that a doorway exists: and we know that, to reach that doorway, we've got to go up the stairs. If—"

"My God," said I, starting up.

There was a moment's silence.

Then—

"Go on," said Elizabeth, quietly. "What do you know?"

"Your father said that there was in the tower a doorway which no one would ever find. And then he used the words 'you must go up, counting your steps.' But he never said that the doorway was on the staircase. He said it was in the tower."

"You mean—"

"I mean that we have been looking for a doorway which we can reach from the stair: but we ought to have been looking for something upon the stair which, when we have found it, will disclose where the doorway is."

"That's right," said Herrick's voice. "And the stairway bears him out. There is no doorway there—I think we can swear to that. But there is a spring or something which, when we can touch it off, will open some hidden door in another part of the tower."

The case was now greatly altered. We knew that the path we were on was the right one and very soon would bring us up to our goal.

And so it did.

Not more than an hour had gone by when I found on the thirty-sixth step a nick which might have belonged to the lid of a pencil box. It was cut in the tread of the step, close to the edge and close to the outer wall. It was choked with a cake of dirt which I had to cut out with my knife, and an obstinate film of dirt was encrusting that side of the tread; but when I had used a wet cloth to rub the stone clean, there were the parallel cracks which I had expected to see. In a word, I had found a panel—a tiny, sliding panel which, if I could draw it towards me, would discover a slot in the tread, three inches by two.

(Here, perhaps, I should say that I have now no doubt that the film of dirt on the tread was more than the natural deposit which Time will lay, and that, after replacing the panel, the late Count of Brief had washed the stone with some liquid which, when it was dry, would form an invisible skin.)

Half an hour went by before the little panel allowed me to have my way. Then at last, with a crack, it yielded, and two minutes later I drew it out of the tread.

Its withdrawal disclosed no slot, but a miniature well, rather more than an inch across; and sunk in this well was a bolt of very old iron.

At once we saw that the bolt was thus holding in place the rise of the step upon which we were now at work, and that if we could pull the bolt up, the rise would be free to be moved.

Science Has Ousted Old-Time Sourdough; College Men Now Hit Canada's Gold Trail

The grizzled old prospector, the sourdough trail blazer through the northern wilderness, has not disappeared from the scene but is gradually vanishing from Canada's gold trails, writes a Vancouver (B. C.) United Press correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

Some have followed the modern trend to the airlanes, while newfangled gadgets explore the secrets of the earth and modern aerial photography eliminates the guesswork in the present day quest for gold.

Still the veterans and the younger men swarm over Canada's hinterland in search of the "gold in them thar hills," but modern mining men agree that they belong to the lost legion.

The yellow metal is still "where you find it" but modern science is finding it first. It is the era of the geologist, the college-trained miner.

Geophysical prospectors reveal what lies under the glacial layer which covers the dominion. This year the Canadian government will send 40 such expeditions into the northern mining areas.

In the Cariboo district of British Columbia placer mining is still in evidence and hundreds of men have gleaned a living by panning the creeks, encouraged by high gold prices in world markets.

But primitive panning methods have given way to scientific geophysical panning, and large companies explore the earth, 600 or more feet deep, for old pre-glacial creek beds.

The drill of the hard-rock miner has displaced the pick and shovel of the surface miner, and in the Yukon old style placer mining has been discarded for huge dredges.

"The Blood Stone"

A small, silver-mounted crystal ball is known as "The Blood Stone," and is believed to have been used by the ancient Druids for calling down spiritual fire and summoning the gods. It was buried near what is now Chatham, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, with a woman presumed to be a high priestess in a religion that practiced strange and horrible rites; this type of stone was popular with witches. According to legend it has had an evil effect on mankind since the dim ages before Christ was born, and people are chary about possessing it.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Timely Advice on Planning Meals for Languid Appetites

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

AS THE weather begins to get warmer, many families develop a finicky attitude toward food. They come to the table with little appetite and claim that nothing tastes good. Before you reproach them, however, give some thought to the type of meals you are serving. Do they contain an abundance of crisp, succulent greens which tempt the eye and the palate and furnish important minerals and vitamins? Do they include juicy fruits with their refreshing flavors and appetite-stimulating fruit acids? Have you cut down somewhat on carbohydrates and fats? Or are you still offering enough energy foods at each meal to supply the fuel requirements of cold winter days?

A carefully chosen diet is an excellent remedy for the let-down feeling that both children and adults often experience at this season. For science has discovered what food substances are necessary to promote appetite and digestion, to help maintain buoyant health.

Obtaining the Appetite Vitamin

We know for example that when the appetite is poor, there may be a deficiency of that part of the vitamin B - complex which nutritionists call B_1. There is both experimental and clinical evidence that this vitamin is essential for the maintenance of a keen appetite. In addition, it is also required for the normal functioning of the digestive tract, so that it must be provided in sufficient amounts if food is to be utilized to best advantage.

Among the foods which supply this vitamin are whole grain cereals, bran, eggs, milk, peas, beans, carrots, spinach and cabbage. It is also found in many fruits, though usually in lesser amounts. In general, a most satisfactory way to insure a liberal intake of the appetite-promoting vitamin is to include in the diet generous amounts of whole grain cereals, milk, vegetables and fruits. As these foods likewise contribute many other necessary substances, they rate a prominent place in the dietary.

Foods That Build Blood

It is also extremely important that menus for finicky eaters should be rich in iron. For this mineral is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood—and it is the hemoglobin that carries purifying oxygen to every cell in the body. Iron-rich foods include liver, eggs, whole grain cereals, dried fruits, and green, leafy vegetables. I have repeatedly urged the generous consumption of green, leafy vegetables, and I cannot too strongly emphasize their importance as a source of iron, as well as other essential minerals; and vitamins.

Another piece of advice that warrants repetition is my frequent recommendation that you include in the diet adequate amounts of bulky foods. These are necessary to help promote normal elimination. If your menus contain too many highly concentrated foods, irregular health habits may result. And that in itself may be responsible for a feeling of lassitude and a lack of interest in eating. Here again fruits and vegetables are important. Together with whole grain cereals and breads, they constitute our most important source of bulk or cellulose.

Get Plenty of Milk

Milk is another food that should be used generously, because it contains such a wide assortment of protective substances. It is our foremost source of calcium, which is required for the teeth, bones and for sound healthy nerves. And it contains every known vitamin in varying amounts.

If your family does not care for milk as a beverage, make frequent use of cheese which is essentially milk in concentrated form. And use milk freely in sauces and for making desserts. It can also be incorporated in nourishing cream soups, to be served for luncheon or supper. Follow the soup with a salad made from crisp greens and including a protein food, such as cheese, nuts, or hard-cooked eggs. And top off with a fruit dessert. This type of meal appeals to the appetite and provides substantial amounts of minerals and vitamins.

Salads Twice a Day

A crisp appetizer salad makes a good beginning for the main meal of the day. A combination of watercress, dandelion greens, lettuce or shredded cabbage, with fruit, or a small amount of a savory fish paste will intrigue the most reluctant appetite. And when the salad is served at the beginning of a meal, you can be sure that it will be eaten before the hunger is satisfied.

Another way to get additional vegetables into a meal is to mold them in gelatin and serve as a dinner salad. Or an assortment of fruits can be treated in the same way and used as a combination salad and dessert. If prepared gelatin desserts are used, a wide variety of color and flavor combinations can be achieved with very little effort; and children will eat them with relish.

You'll be surprised to discover how quickly interest can be stimulated by serving familiar foods in a new way!

MOTHER'S DAY

With no effort at all, we can be thoughtless. With no effort at all, we can let Mother's Day go by, indifferently, perhaps a little scornfully. With no effort at all, we can pretend to be smart, and mutter something about it being "just a lot of sentiment."

But is that all there is to Mother's Day—just a lot of sentiment? Let's think back now. When you were a youngster did yau have any protests to make against the "sentiment" which guarded you, comforted you, and shared your troubles, the "sentiment" which brought you sympathy and understanding, the "sentiment" which expected great things of you, and stood up for you, and when thinks went wrong, and perhaps none too flatteringly for you, still believed in you?"

Call that "sentiment" if you like, but it was more than that. It was devotion and self-sacrifice, patience and faith, with no thought of reward save—you.

But we so easily tend to forget all that. We need the friendly reminder of Mother's day to let us know that right here in the present is a time, and a day, to show our thoughtfullness in a token of remembrance. She remembers. Will you?

DEATH, THOU SHALT DIE!

The deeds that good men do live on after them.

Just the other day in Santa Clara, a rabies-infected dog ran amuck and sank its fangs into six persons before it was caught.

Scarcely more than fifty years ago death might have struck down those victims of a mad dog.

For it was no longer ago than the momentous day of July 6, 1885, that Louis Pasteur, after a long period of exhaustive research, dared put his newly found knowledge to the critical test. On that July day he boldly proceeded to inoculate a child badly bitten by a dog which was suffering from rabies—and the inoculation worked! Pasteur's labors had at last furnished the world with a successful curative and preventive treatment for hydrophobia in human beings as well as for rabies in canines.

The mortality rate from this disease has now been cut—with the powerful yet humane weapons which Paseur created for medical science—to less than one per cent!

The deeds that good men do live on after them, and in that thought the French scientist found reward for his unceasing efforts on behalf of a happier, healthier mankind. Though simple in tastes and poor in physical wealth, his name is rich in the honor with which the world regards one of its benefactors.

Because of him, the cry of "mad dog!" on our streets no longer carries the panicky hint of death. Pasteur's discoveries have enabled man to say, in the challenging words of the poet, "Death, thou shalt die!"

IN POLITICS, IT'S DIFFERENT

Everybody laughed when a Long Beach, Calif., physician first broached his old age pension plan to the world a few years ago, while economists busily sharpened their pencils and figured out, to their satisfaction, that it didn't make sense.

But who's laughing now? Just the other day Florida memorialized Congress to pass the Townsend old age pension bill. This makes nineteen states which have gone publicly on record in favor of the plan.

Economically, it still has the analysts baffled, but politically, it's a different story. Men of both parties have galloped up the slopes of Capitol Hill and right into Congress on the basis of their pledges to support the plan.

Who can say now that it doesn't make sense? It means jobs for many office-seekers, both for those who sincerely believe in it and for those who have callouses on their consciences. It means a life of promised ease and contentment to its supporters, and a nightmare to a large number of taxpayers.

At any rate, nobody's laughing now.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Restore Jobs by Helping in Sale Of Products of Farm and Factory

That Is Philosophy of Head of Export-Import Bank Which Is Doing Good Work in Financing Trade With S. America; Outstanding Commitments 229 Millions.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—"I am supremely confident of one thing—we are making a dent in the job of getting back some of our foreign trade that was lost to other nations in the last few years. Nobody can be sure that we ever will get all of it back, but I am hopeful because this little institution of ours here is showing that it can function safely and satisfactorily."

That statement, perhaps, is the best summary I can give of the philosophy of Warren Lee Pierson, the president—and pretty largely the heart and soul—of the export-import bank. Likewise, it rather delineates the program of that little-known federal agency; because Mr. Pierson is determined to see American products, farm or factory, moving as of old into the hands of users and consumers in foreign lands. Moreover, to analyze the outlook of the man is to reach a conclusion that he believes the way to restore people to jobs in this country is to assist American farms and factories in the sale of their products.

It is curiously true that some of the federal agencies which are doing important work and doing it efficiently are least known to the general public. They have no staff of press agents; they seldom "break into print," yet they seem to be serving all of the people well.

Department of commerce reports have been showing how our exports have declined through many months. The records give one the impression that the lines on the chart, showing totals each month, are in a race to see which one can dive faster or deeper. I have wondered where we were headed, as a nation of producers. Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade treaties have been getting exactly nowhere; and have done so at enormous speed. Secretary Wallace's ideas for selling our farm products have proved to be nothing but dreams and, like dreams, they vanished the next morning, except that perhaps the next day Mr. Wallace's publicity staff announced another plan.

Solution of Unemployment Is to Encourage Industry

"What," I asked Mr. Pierson, "is the answer?"

His reply was quoted as the introductory paragraph. He seemed fully to recognize all of the difficulties confronting the United States at the moment. Further, there was every evidence that Mr. Pierson is one of the few officials of government who are aware that the solution to our unemployment problem is to assist industry so that it can re-employ workers. Unless industry can be encouraged, it appears that the nation is going to continue with 10,000,000 unemployed as it has for the last few years. I found it refreshing, therefore, to hear Mr. Pierson talk about how a few dozen large factories have been kept open and with relatively full payrolls because the export-import bank was able to help foreign buyers who wanted American products but could not pay cash for them.

For reasons that I will mention subsequently, however, I had some misgivings about the operations of the export-import bank. I doubted that there would be repayment of money advanced by the bank.

"Well, the default is a thing that happens to a greater or less extent wherever credit is extended," Mr. Pierson explained. "If there were never any defaults, there would be no risk atached to banking business. But, unfortunately, that element must be taken into consideration. The fact that there is credit risk is why this export-import bank was organized. Of course, there were other reasons, but the instability of some foreign governments, the lack of exchange and such conditions made it necessary for our government to step in and help those who are trying to export American-made goods.

Collateral Behind Notes Is Guarantee of Payment

"It is to be remembered that goods for export go in larger quantities and that necessarily larger sums of money are needed to handle the transactions. In addition, we have found that, in many instances, the buyers were what can be termed as good credit risks, but they were unable to make payments of such large sums at one time. Nor were the American manufacturers able to wait for three or four or five years. To do so would exhaust their resources. That is where we come into the picture.

"Take a case like this: A South American railroad company wanted to buy some locomotives. Those things cost money. They wanted American engines. But they wanted to pay the bill on an installment basis. We agreed to take about 60 per cent of the notes. Commercial banks with which the manufacturer was dealing agreed to take over the remainder on a short term basis."

All of which sounded very well. But having watched the negotiations with foreign governments over repayment of the loans made by the United States during the World war, I had some misgivings. It seemed that here was another agency doing exactly what Mr. William Gibbs McAdoo had done as secretary of the treasury during the World war. In other words, the futility of ever expecting a payment on foreign loans rather had been impressed upon me. I told Mr. Pierson of my feelings.

"That cannot be so in our case," he explained. "We have collateral. We have ways of collecting. There are guarantees behind the notes we have received, for example, in the locomotives. We have no fears at all."

The guarantees, the collateral, about which Mr. Pierson spoke, I learned, were in the shape of a bank endorsement. That is to say, one of the South American banks, with deposits in New York and other large cities in the United States, has added its promise to pay to the promissory notes given by the purchaser. Mr. Pierson did not say so, but it became readily apparent to me that, should the South American nation concerned decide to forbid payments to foreigners, as has happened before, the export-import bank, if need be, could grab for the South American deposits in this country. Mr. Pierson gave no intimation that such a course had entered his thoughts.

Concentrate on Financing Exports to South America

At the moment, there seems to be quite a concentration of effort to aid in financing exports to South America. Of course, there have been credits arranged for several places in Europe, too, and also in China. Mr. Pierson is very optimistic about future trade with China. But the bulk of the loans have been in connection with South American propositions.

And the fact that the export-import bank is paying so much attention to South America is important in another way. The fascist dictators, Mussolini and Hitler, are driving hard to gain trade footholds in South America. Having the type of government Germany and Italy have, it is easy for them to make any kind of arrangements desired by using whatever government resources are necessary. It strikes me, therefore, that if the export-import bank is making that dent about which I quoted Mr. Pierson in the opening sentence; if it is gaining a toehold in South America against the high-pressure methods employed by the dictators, then it is performing a great service for the citizens of the United States. It is conceivable, indeed, that extension of credits in the manner described might possibly be the means by which North and South America can be tightly bound to each other in war as well as in peace.

There is another thing about the export-import bank that impressed me. It is operating on borrowed money, of course; and the taxpayers will have to make up any losses because the federal government obviously is morally bound to pay off the bank's bonds if it were to collapse. But thus far in its life, the export-import bank has had no losses. Thus far, it has been able to pay all of its own expenses out of the interest charged its borrowers.

Export-Import Bank Stands To Make Large Profit

And important also is the fact that in the current year, barring unforeseen developments, the export-import bank stands to make a profit of something like $5,000,000. That ought to be good news to taxpayers during an era when spending money is the first thing to which attention is given. I believe that fact will impress you as much as it impressed me.

Mr. Pierson told me that the bank has made commitments, now outstanding, of slightly more than $229,000,000. That is to say, the bank has agreed to help finance exports to that extent, provided the terms are met, and it must not be overlooked that the bank is rather hard boiled. Mr. Pierson pointed out that the export-import bank had to be really as careful as any commercial bank, but it can do something the commercial banks cannot do—make longer-term loans. Those are the loans represented in the $229,000,00.

The figures showed that $67,000,000 actually has been paid out to borrowers in financing foreign trade and, of this amount, repayments under the terms of the loans have amounted to $38,000,000. Which is to say that of the loans outstanding, well over half have been liquidated in orderly fashion.

That is the record to date, and Mr. Pierson repeated that a dent has been made with a comparatively small sum of money.

MATTRESS
STITCH THE VALANCE TO AN OLD SHEET OR MUSLIN CUT TO FIT THE TOP OF THE BED SPRINGS—

A valance for a bed.

A SMART new house it was, and all the curtains and slip-covers were made by following my sketches in Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator! But when we came to the second floor it was my turn to get a few pointers.

The treatment of each of the two principal bedrooms was quite different. One was very simple with a lovely old quilt used for a bedspread; the other was in flowery glazed chintz with strong accents of bright greenish blue. Both beds required a valance that would not be removed with the spread at night.

Here is the flowered bedspread and the small sketch shows you how the valance problem was solved. As my clever young hostess pointed out, this is really a bright idea because the valance and its foundation make a cover for the springs in case they are not the boxed type.

With the help of Book 1, you can make many of the things you have been wanting for the house. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts, is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making things for yourself or to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, the quilt leaflet illustrating 36 authentic embroidery stitches will be included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

SAFETY TALKS

Driving Too Fast

OF THE 28 states which published fatal traffic accident summaries for the year, 21 classified more drivers as "exceeding the speed limit" or "driving too fast for conditions" than were charged with any other kind of improper driving.

All 28 states combined, says the National Safety council, in its 1938 edition of "Accident Facts," reported about 18 per cent of the drivers in fatal accidents and about 9 per cent of the drivers in non-fatal accidents were in this category.

How 25 Women Lost Ugly FAT In Special N. Y. Test

Ask Your Doctor If It Isn't Good Way. Read EVERY Word

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a test by a prominent N. Y. Physician and nationally known newspaper woman—25 women lost a total of 286 lbs. in 40 days. YOU, too, can follow this SAME, SENSIBLE plan right at home and here it is:

First of all go light on fatty meats and sweets. Eat plentifully of lean meats, fish, fowl, fresh fruits and vegetables. And for proper functioning by removal of accumulated wastes take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in hot water every morning. DON'T MISS A MORNING. Kruschen is made right here in U. S. A. from famous English formula.

And this is IMPORTANT: Kruschen is NOT harmful. It is not just one salt as some people ignorantly believe. Rather, it's a blend of 6 active minerals, which when dissolved in water make a healthful mineral drink similar to effective Spa waters where wealthy women have gone for years. A jar of Kruschen costs only a few cents and lasts 6 weeks.

So, fat ladies—get some gumption! MAKE UP YOUR MIND YOU'LL STICK to the above Plan for 28 days and just see if you don't lose fat and feel healthier and younger. You can get Kruschen at druggists everywhere.

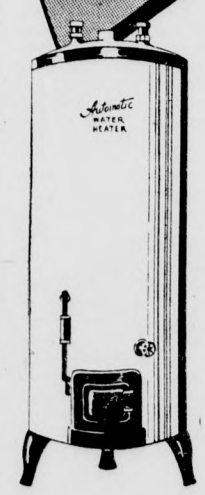
HOT WATER Bargain



WHO doesn't like to make a bargain? Here is one. It is like saving Twelve Dollars. Good just this month. After May 31 the bargain is off.

You turn in your present non-automatic water heater on the purchase of a modern Automatic Gas Water Heater that qualifies for this offer.

You receive Twelve Dollars trade-in allowance for your old non-automatic water heater. That means you have a credit of Twelve Dollars that is deducted from the price of your new Automatic Gas Water Heater.

During the summer months every home needs MORE HOT WATER and should have PLENTY OF HOT WATER. There is one way to be certain of an ample supply—one sure way—your heater must be AUTOMATIC. No striking of matches—no waiting. Hot water is always automatically there when you turn a faucet.

Once you have used an Automatic Gas Water Heater you will wonder how you ever got along without it!

TURN ON HOT WATER AT THE FAUCET
$12 FOR YOUR NON-AUTOMATIC WATER HEATER WHEN YOU BUY A MODERN GAS AUTOMATIC WATER HEATER
SPECIAL TRADE-IN OFFER ENDS MAY 31
THIS SPECIAL TRADE-IN OFFER APPLIES ONLY on the purchase of an Automatic Gas Water Heater of 20 gallon capacity selling for $50 or more and on larger gallonage heaters priced proportionately.
